The Summit offers the opportunity for vendors to showcase their latest developments in Automated, Connected, Electric, and Shared (ACES) technologies in secured areas and allows vendors to highlight their innovations and provide hands-on experience for attendees to see these technologies in action.

Demonstrating how these advanced emerging technologies can be seamlessly integrated into existing planning and operations is crucial for promoting their adoption and implementation. By showcasing real-world applications and benefits, vendors can effectively communicate the potential of ACES technologies to the targeted audience. This kind of engagement fosters collaboration between industry stakeholders and policymakers, driving forward the evolution of transportation towards more efficient, sustainable, and innovative solutions.

Registered 2024 FAV Summit student attendees are invited to submit a poster detailing a project or research related to automated, connected, electric, or shared vehicles and industries.

Students are the foundation upon which the future is built. Investing in their education, nurturing their talents, and empowering them to think critically and creatively are essential steps in ensuring a brighter future for all.

Each year, the Summit invites college students to submit their ideas for solving real-world issues – or for coming up with a brand new idea. The posters are meant to facilitate informal discussions with the students and attendees and serve as visual aids that help convey complex concepts and research findings in a digestible format. The interactive nature of the poster sessions allows for deeper exploration of specific points of interest, fostering meaningful conversations between the student presenters and their audience.

Judging posters provides an opportunity to recognize outstanding contributions and highlight innovative ideas. Successful poster presenters are those who can effectively communicate the relevance and significance of their topics to the overarching themes of the summit, achieving both coverage and clarity in their presentations. This approach enhances the overall experience for attendees and contributes to the collaborative atmosphere of the event.
